Pencil pressure

LetterSchool worksheet pack · free to print and share

Your child presses so hard the pencil breaks or the paper tears, or writes so lightly it is hard to see. Pressure depends on feeling the pencil and paper, and on muscle control.

How to use this pack

1. Three pressures: Dark, light and just right.
2. Warm up: Hand warm-ups before writing.
3. Short rows: Write three, check the pressure, rest.

Hand warm-ups before writing

Name _____

Card for parents and teachers

One or two minutes before writing. Do them together; make it a game.

1. Shake it out ☐
   Shake your hands like you are drying them, fast and then slow.

2. Palm press ☐
   Press your palms together in front of your chest and count to five. Relax. Do it three times.

3. Finger walk ☐
   Walk your fingers up a pencil from the end to the tip, then back down.

4. Spider push-ups ☐
   Fingertips together, push and relax five times.

5. Roll a ball ☐
   Roll a small ball of playdough between thumb and two fingers.

Warm-ups are a fun start, not a treatment. Real handwriting progress comes from practising letters. If writing hurts, talk to your doctor or an occupational therapist.

Sitting and pencil grip check

Name _____

Card for parents and teachers

A quick check before writing. Comfort and control matter more than one “correct” grip.

1. Feet flat ☐
   Both feet flat on the floor or on a box, knees and hips at about a right angle.

2. Table height ☐
   The table about at elbow height when sitting; forearms resting on the table.

3. Helper hand ☐
   The other hand holds the paper still.

4. Paper tilt ☐
   Paper tilted a little: to the left for right-handers, to the right for left-handers.

5. Relaxed grip ☐
   The pencil held between thumb and fingers, without white knuckles. Short pencils and broken crayons make this easier.

Research shows several grips can give good, fast handwriting. If a grip causes pain or real trouble, ask an occupational therapist.
